A LITTLE MORE LUXURY

HUKA LODGE, TAUPO

The original luxury lodge in New Zealand, Taupo's Huka Lodge has played host to all manner of world leaders, royals and celebrities looking to escape reality and enjoy the serenity of New Zealand's native bush. The lodge is said to have been Queen Elizabeth's preferred accommodation when visiting the Antipodes. Originally set up as fisherman's quarters nearly 100 years ago, the property is now home to 20 suites and two private retreats, and recently became part of the Baillie Lodges collection, alongside iconic properties such as Longitude 131 at Uluru and Capella Lodge on Lord Howe Island. hukalodge.co.nz

THE LINDIS, AHURIRI VALLEY

To experience some of New Zealand's wildest landscapes, including Franz Josef Glacier, you need to head south. And to experience them in style, you'll want to set up camp at The Lindis, one of New Zealand's newest luxury lodges. Located in a glacial valley, the lodge offers high country seclusion, including horse trekking across some of New Zealand's most remote landscapes. Heli-skiing and glacier walks can be easily arranged to fill your days, while evenings are best spent star-gazing and marvelling at the night sky. thelindis.co.nz

THE FARM AT CAPE KIDNAPPERS, HAWKE'S BAY

If food and wine are your raison d'être, The Farm at Cape Kidnappers is the luxury lodge for you. Located on the coastal fringes of the Hawke's Bay – famous as both the nation's food bowl and New Zealand's most prolific wine region – Cape Kidnappers makes the most of its location, heroing produce grown in its own gardens and championing local producers. An award-winning, cliff top golf course is just one of the draw cards here, as is The Cape Sanctuary, which is home to a number of endangered native species, including eastern brown kiwi and little spotted kiwi. The sanctuary is closed to the public but lodge guests are able to take part in exclusive sanctuary-based experiences. capekidnappers.co.nz
